If you are or will be age 50 by the end of the year, you may make an additional contribution of up to $1,000 for 2017. These limits may be less if you have modified adjusted gross income that exceeds $118,000 (single or married filing separately) or $186,000 (married filing jointly) for 2017, indexed for cost of living thereafter. Regular contributions made to a traditional IRA reduce the amount you can contribute to a Roth IRA.

If you designate a trust as a beneficiary, include the trust's name and address, the date the trust was created, and the trustee's name. You are not limited to three primary and three contingent beneficiaries. To designate additional beneficiaries, please attach and sign a separate piece of paper stating the additional names and identifying information.

Unless otherwise indicated, death benefits will be paid in equal shares to your primary beneficiaries who are living at the time of your death. If no primary beneficiary is living at your death, unless otherwise indicated, death benefits will be paid in equal shares to your contingent beneficiaries who are living at the time of your death. If you name multiple primary or contingent beneficiaries, and one of them predeceases you, the percentage of that beneficiary's designated share shall be divided equally amongst the surviving primary or contingent beneficiaries, as applicable.

IMPORTANT: If you do not elect a beneficiary, or if your beneficiaries named on this Roth IRA Enrollment Form fail to survive you, your benefits will be paid to your estate. Failure to include a social security number and current contact information for each designated beneficiary, if applicable, may delay distributions at your death.

ROTH IRA DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The Pension Fund of the Christian Church established and maintains the Defined Contribution Retirement Accounts of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) ("DCRA"). The DCRA is a retirement income account program described in Section 403(b)(9) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended ("Code"), for the benefit of eligible employees of churches and church related organizations.

Pension Fund adopted a deemed Roth IRA program as part of the DCRA, in accordance with Section 408(q) of the Internal Revenue Code ("Code"). The Roth IRA program meets the requirements of Code Section 408A. This disclosure statement provides you with an outline of the basic rules that apply with respect to a Roth IRA, as required by Code Section 408A and related regulations.

A. REVOCATION OF YOUR ROTH IRA

You have the right to revoke your Roth IRA within seven days after the IRA has been established. The Roth IRA is considered to be established as of the date your Roth IRA Enrollment Form is received by Pension Fund. In order to revoke your establishment of a Roth IRA, you will need to deliver or mail a written notice to Pension Fund at:

Pension Fund of the Christian Church
P.O. Box 6251
Indianapolis, IN 46206-6251

If mailed, the notice must be post-marked by the seventh day after the Roth IRA has been established. Upon receipt of a timely revocation, Pension Fund will refund any contributions you have made, without adjustment for earnings or fees.

B. IMPORTANT INFORMATION REGARDING YOUR ROTH IRA

Eligibility

You and your spouse are each eligible to establish a Roth IRA if you are employed by an eligible employer under the DCRA, provided that if your spouse is establishing a Roth IRA, you and your spouse must file a joint tax return. You can make contributions to your own Roth IRA and your spouse can make contributions to his or her own Roth IRA, for each year that you and your spouse have taxable compensation. Your taxable compensation includes wages, salaries, tips, professional fees, bonuses, and other amounts received for providing personal services, as well as self-employment income, nontaxable combat pay, military differential pay, and taxable alimony and separate maintenance payments. Taxable compensation does not include earnings and profits from property (rental, interest or dividend income), income from partnerships, any amounts not included in income (other than combat pay), or retirement plan payments (distributions from 403(b), 401(a), or 457 plans or from IRAs) or any other type of deferred compensation payments. Special rules allow you to consider the taxable compensation of your spouse as your own, excluding the IRA contributions made by your spouse, so that you may be able to contribute to a Roth IRA even if you do not have taxable compensation.

You and your spouse are no longer eligible to make regular contributions to a Roth IRA when your employment with your employer ends, unless you are reemployed by another eligible employer. However, you each can continue to make rollover contributions to your respective Roth IRAs. In addition, you and your spouse may still establish a Roth IRA after you sever employment with an eligible employer in order to receive rollover contributions to the Roth IRA. You and your spouse can each make rollover contributions to your own Roth IRA from retirement plans or IRAs held in your own name only.

Throughout the remainder of this disclosure statement, "you" refers to the employee, former employee, or spouse of either who is eligible to establish a Roth IRA under the DCRA.

Types of Roth IRA Contributions

You can make a regular contribution to your Roth IRA.

You can rollover funds from another Roth IRA or from a Roth account held under an eligible retirement plan to your Roth IRA. An eligible retirement plan includes a 401(k) plan, a 403(b) plan, or a governmental 457(b) plan. A rollover from an eligible retirement plan may be paid directly to your Roth IRA (called a "direct rollover"), or it may be paid to you, after which you will have 60 days to complete the rollover transaction to your Roth IRA (called an "indirect rollover"). A rollover from another Roth IRA will always be paid to you first, after which you will have 60 days to complete the rollover transaction to your Roth IRA.

You can also rollover funds from a traditional IRA or from a pre-tax account held under an eligible retirement plan. For example, if you are eligible for a distribution, you can rollover your pre-tax 403(b) account under the DCRA to your Roth IRA. This type of rollover is often called a "conversion."

You can also transfer funds directly from another IRA to your Roth IRA through a trustee-to-trustee transfer. This type of transaction is similar to a direct rollover from an eligible retirement plan because the payment is made directly to the receiving IRA trustee instead of to you. If the transfer comes from a traditional IRA, it is called a "conversion."

You may continue to make regular contributions to a Roth IRA after you attain age 70½, so long as you have taxable compensation and you (or your spouse, if applicable) continue to be employed by an eligible employer under the DCRA.

Maximum Contribution

If you are under age 50, you may only contribute a maximum of $5,500 for 2017, increased thereafter for any cost of living adjustment. If you are age 50 or over or will reach age 50 by the end of the calendar year, your maximum contribution is $6,500 for 2017, increased thereafter for any cost of living adjustment. Your maximum contribution cannot exceed 100% of your taxable compensation, except that if you file a joint return and your taxable compensation is less than that of your spouse, the amount you can contribute to a Roth IRA is the lesser of the specified dollar limit for the year or the total taxable compensation for both you and your spouse for the year, reduced by your spouse's contribution for the year to an IRA.

Your contributions to all your IRAs are aggregated for purposes of these dollar limits and, therefore, any contribution you make to a traditional IRA or to another Roth IRA will reduce the contribution that you can make to your Roth IRA. Your contributions are not limited by participation in a retirement plan other than a traditional or Roth IRA.

Your maximum contribution may be further reduced depending on your modified adjusted gross income

(AGI) and your tax filing status.

If your filing status is	And your modified AGI is	Then you can make
Single, head of household, or married filing separately and you did not live with your spouse at any time during the year	Less than $118,000	A full contribution
	At least $118,000 but less than $133,000	A partial contribution
	$133,000 or more	No contribution
Married filing jointly or qualified widower	Less than $186,000	A full contribution
	At least $186,000 but less than $196,000	A partial contribution
	$196,000 or more	No contribution
Married filing separately and you lived with your spouse at any time during the year	$0	A full contribution
	More than $0 but less than $10,000	A partial contribution
	$10,000 or more	No contribution

These modified AGI limits may be increased after 2017 for any cost of living adjustment. For more information on these contribution limits, please see IRS Publication 590-A.

Deductibility of Contributions

Contributions to a Roth IRA are not tax deductible.

Deadlines for Roth IRA Contributions

You may establish and make contributions to your Roth IRA any time from January 1 of the current year until the tax filing deadline (generally April 15) of the following year. If you make a contribution after the end of the tax year but before the tax filing deadline, you may designate which tax year for which you are making the contribution.

You may establish and make regular contributions to a Roth IRA for the prior year even if you (or your spouse, if applicable) are no longer employed by an eligible employer, so long as you were eligible to establish and make regular contributions to the Roth IRA in the prior year.

Tax-Deferred Earnings

The investment earnings on your Roth IRA account are not subject to federal income tax as they accumulate. Distributions of Roth IRA earnings will be tax free if your distribution is qualified, as discussed below.

Excess Contributions

If your regular contributions to a Roth IRA exceed the contribution limits, a 6% excise tax may apply to the portion of the contribution that is an excess contribution. This excise tax will apply each year that the excess contribution remains in your Roth IRA. If you withdraw an excess contribution along with any applicable earnings prior to your deadline for making Roth IRA contributions (your tax filing deadline for the year, generally April 15), the excise tax will not apply.

Rollovers, Transfers, Conversions, and Re-Characterizations

➤ Rollovers and Transfers to a Roth IRA.

You may rollover funds from a 403(b), 401(k) or governmental 457(b) plan to your Roth IRA within 60 days of receiving the distribution or by directing the administrator of the plan to transfer the funds directly to the Roth IRA in a direct rollover. This includes a rollover from your pre-tax 403(b) account under the DCRA to your Roth IRA. Amounts rolled over from pre-tax accounts are treated as conversions. You must include in your gross income distributions that you would have had to include in income had you not converted them into a Roth IRA, but the 10% early withdrawal tax penalty will not apply.

You may also rollover funds from another Roth IRA or a traditional IRA to your Roth IRA within 60 days of receiving the distribution. Alternatively, you may transfer funds from another Roth IRA or traditional IRA to your Roth IRA by directing the trustee of the other IRA to transfer the funds directly to the Roth IRA in a trustee-to-trustee transfer. Amounts rolled over or transferred from traditional IRAs are treated as conversions. The amount of the conversion attributable to deductible contributions is includible in your gross income and subject to ordinary income tax, but the 10% early withdrawal tax penalty does not apply. In addition, if you are age 70½ or older, you must remove your required minimum distribution prior to converting your traditional IRA.

If you intend to move funds from another Roth IRA to your Roth IRA, a trustee-to-trustee transfer may be more advantageous to you than a rollover. For example, a transfer is not subject to the limitation of one rollover per 12-month period that applies to IRA-to-IRA rollovers (conversions are also not subject to this limitation). For more information, please see the Roth IRA Owner Resource Book or your financial or tax advisor.

➤ Rollovers and Transfers Out of a Roth IRA.

You may rollover part or all of a distribution from your Roth IRA to another Roth IRA within 60 days of receiving the distribution. Alternatively, you may transfer funds from your Roth IRA to another Roth IRA by directing Pension Fund to transfer the funds directly to the other Roth IRA in a trustee-to-trustee transfer.

The amount of the rollover or transfer is not includible in your gross income, and the 10% early withdrawal tax penalty will not apply. However, if you intend to move funds from your Roth IRA to another Roth IRA, a trustee-to-trustee transfer may be more advantageous to you than a rollover. For example, a transfer is not subject to the limitation of one rollover per 12-month period that applies to IRA-to-IRA rollovers. Note, however, that IRA providers are not required to permit or accept trustee-to-trustee transfers. If you need more information, please see the Roth IRA Owner Resource Book or your financial or tax advisor.

You are not permitted to rollover distributions from your Roth IRA to an employer-sponsored retirement plan, including a 403(b), 401(k) or governmental 457(b) plan.

➤ Limitation on IRA Rollovers.

You are limited to making one rollover from an IRA to another IRA in a 12-month period. However, this restriction does not apply to a conversion of a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA, or to a trustee-to-trustee transfer from one IRA trustee to another IRA trustee.

You may request a trustee-to-trustee transfer of a regular contribution made to a traditional IRA, adjusted by earnings or losses, to your Roth IRA prior to your tax filing deadline plus extensions. The transferred contribution will be treated as if it had always been made to your Roth IRA, also called a "recharacterization" of the IRA contribution.

Taxation of Distributions from Roth IRA

You may request a distribution of your funds in your Roth IRA at any time.

If your distribution is a qualified distribution, both your Roth IRA contributions and earnings will be distributed to you tax free. A qualified distribution is a distribution that is made after the end of a five year period beginning with the first day of the year in which you made your initial contribution to a Roth IRA and that meets one of the following requirements: (i) the distribution is made after you are at least 59½ years old, (ii) the distribution is made after you become disabled, (iii) you are the beneficiary of the deceased IRA owner, or (iv) the distribution is for a first time home purchase.

If your distribution is not a qualified distribution, the earnings will be included in your gross income. However, if you request a partial distribution of your account, your annual contributions will be treated as distributed first, then your conversion contributions, and then your earnings. Therefore, your non-qualified distribution will not be taxable unless your distribution exceeds your annual contributions plus conversions.

Unless you rollover your distribution to another Roth IRA, you must generally pay a 10% penalty tax on your Roth IRA earnings if the distribution is not a qualified distribution. This penalty tax is not applicable if the distribution meets one of the following exceptions:

- is made after you are at least 59½ years old
- is made after you become disabled
- is made to you as the beneficiary of the deceased IRA owner
- is for a first time home purchase
- is for medical expenses in excess of 10% of your adjusted gross income
- is for qualified higher education expenses

- is for medical insurance premiums while you are unemployed
- is a qualified reservist distribution

If you take a distribution from your Roth IRA before the end of the five year period beginning with the first day of the year in which you converted an amount from a traditional IRA or qualified retirement plan to the Roth IRA, you must generally pay a 10% penalty tax on the portion of the conversion distribution that you had to include in income because of the conversion. A separate five year period applies to each conversion. This penalty tax is not applicable if the distribution meets one of the exceptions to the early distribution tax penalty set forth above.

Qualified Charitable Distributions

If you have attained age 70½, you may request that all or a part of your Roth IRA up to $100,000 be contributed to a qualified charitable organization through a qualified charitable distribution. The amount of the qualified charitable distribution is limited to the amount of the distribution that would otherwise be included in income. A qualified charitable distribution is not subject to federal income tax and no tax deduction is allowed for the charitable contribution. A qualified charitable distribution must be distributed directly from your Roth IRA to a qualified charitable organization.

Fees and Expenses

Pension Fund may charge certain fees and expenses specific to you against your Roth IRA. These may include, for example, wire transfer charges, multiple withdrawal fees, or fees for transfers incident to a divorce.

Income Tax Withholding

Pension Fund is required to withhold from your distribution for federal income tax purposes. The required withholding amount is 10% if you elect a lump sum distribution or withholding as if you are married with three exemptions if you elect a periodic distribution. You may instead elect for no withholding or for additional withholding. Withholding does not apply to a trustee-to-trustee transfer from your Roth IRA to another Roth IRA.

State income tax withholding may also apply to distributions from your Roth IRA account when federal income tax is withheld. Please contact your tax advisor for information about your state's income tax withholding requirements.

Required Minimum Distributions

You are not required to take required minimum distributions during your lifetime.

Transfers Incident to Divorce

Pension Fund may approve a direct transfer of all or a portion of your Roth IRA to a separate IRA or plan in your spouse's name pursuant to a written divorce or separate maintenance decree which complies with Code Section 408(b)(6). This transfer will reduce the funds in your Roth IRA.

After Death Distributions to Beneficiaries

You may designate a beneficiary for your Roth IRA on the Roth IRA Enrollment Form when you establish your IRA or at a later date by completing a Beneficiary Designation Form and returning it to Pension Fund. Upon your death, if benefits have not begun to be distributed, your Roth IRA will be payable only to your primary beneficiary(ies). If your primary beneficiary(ies) predecease you, your Roth IRA will be payable to any contingent beneficiary(ies). If you do not complete a Beneficiary Designation Form or if you do not list a contingent beneficiary and your primary beneficiary(ies) predecease you, your Roth IRA will be payable to your estate.

If your sole beneficiary is your spouse, your spouse may elect to either delay distributions until you would have reached age 70½ or treat the Roth IRA as his or her own. If a spouse elects to treat the Roth IRA as his or her own, he or she may combine the IRA with another Roth IRA maintained by the spouse.

If a distribution to your beneficiary is not a qualified distribution, it is includible in the beneficiary's gross income in the same manner it would have been included in your income had it been distributed to you while living.

A beneficiary of an inherited IRA is not treated the same as an IRA owner, except in the case of a spouse beneficiary who elects to be treated as the IRA owner. The distinctions can be important for the beneficiary's own financial and retirement planning. For example, an inherited IRA is not excluded from a beneficiary's estate in bankruptcy proceedings. Beneficiaries should consult with a financial or tax advisor to fully understand their rights with respect to an inherited IRA.

Section 9.06 Valuation of Deemed IRAs. The Member's Account value in a Deemed IRA includes the amount of any outstanding rollover, transfer, and recharacterization under Q&As-7 and -8 of Treasury Regulation Section 1.408-8.

Section 9.07 Beneficiary of Deemed IRAs. With respect to this Article IX, if the Beneficiary of a Deemed IRA, so designated by the Member, shall die after the death of the Member, but prior to receiving a complete distribution of the balance of his or her Deemed IRA amount that would have been paid to such Beneficiary had such Beneficiary's death not then occurred, the undistributed balance of the Deemed IRA that would otherwise have been received by such Beneficiary shall be paid to such person or persons as the Beneficiary shall have designated during his or her lifetime, or, if there is no such designation, to the Beneficiary's estate.

Section 9.08 [Intentionally omitted.]

Section 9.09 Deemed Roth IRA Requirements. The Deemed Roth IRA Trust shall satisfy the following requirements for Deemed Roth IRAs.

(a) Exclusive Benefit. The Deemed Roth IRA Accounts are established for the exclusive benefit of the Member or his or her Beneficiaries.

(b) Maximum Annual Contributions.

(1) Maximum Permissible Amount. Except in the case of a qualified rollover contribution or a recharacterization (as defined in paragraph (5) below), no Voluntary Employee Contribution will be accepted unless it is in cash and the total of such contributions to all the Member's Roth IRAs for a taxable year does not exceed the applicable amount (as defined in paragraph (2) below), or the Member's compensation (as defined in paragraph (7) below), if less, for that taxable year. The contribution described in the previous sentence that may not exceed the lesser of the applicable amount or the Member's compensation is referred to as a "regular contribution." A "qualified rollover contribution" is a rollover contribution that meets the requirements of Code Section 408(d)(3), except the one (1) rollover per year rule of Code Section 408(d)(3)(B) does not apply if the rollover contribution is from a Traditional IRA. A qualified rollover contribution also includes a rollover from a designated Roth account described in Code Section 402A. Voluntary Employee Contributions may be limited under (2) through (4) below.

(2) Applicable Amount. The applicable amount is determined under (i) or (ii) below:

- (i) If the Member is under age fifty (50), the applicable amount is Five Thousand Dollars ($5,500) for 2017, increased thereafter by the Cost of Living Adjustment.
- (ii) If the Member is age fifty (50) or older or will attain age fifty (50) by the end of the Plan Year, the applicable amount is Six Thousand Dollars ($6,500) for 2017, increased thereafter by the Cost of Living Adjustment.

(3) Regular Contribution Limit. If (i) and/or (ii) below apply, the maximum regular contribution that can be made to all the Member's Roth IRAs is the smaller amount determined under (i) or (ii).

- (i) The maximum regular contribution is phased out ratably between certain levels of modified adjusted gross income ("modified AGI," defined in (6) below) in accordance with the following table:

Filing Status	Full Contribution	Phase-out Range	No Contribution
		Modified AGI
Single or Head of Household	Less than $118,000	At least $118,000 but less than $133,000	$133,000 or more
Joint Return or Qualifying Widower	Less than $186,000	At least $186,000 but less than $196,000	$196,000 or more
Married-Separate	$0	More than $0 but	$10,000 or more

Return

less than $10,000

The above dollar amounts are for 2017, and increased thereafter by the Cost of Living Adjustment. If the Member's modified AGI for a taxable year is in the phase-out range, the maximum regular contribution determined under this table for that taxable year is rounded up to the next multiple of Ten Dollars ($10) and is not reduced below Two Hundred Dollars ($200).

- (ii) If the Member makes regular contributions to both Roth and Traditional IRAs for a taxable year, the maximum regular contribution that can be made to all the Member's Roth IRAs for that taxable year is reduced by the regular contributions made to the Member's Traditional IRAs for the taxable year.

(4) SIMPLE IRA Limits. No contributions will be accepted under a SIMPLE IRA plan established by any employer pursuant to Code Section 408(p). No transfer or rollover of funds attributable to contributions made by a particular employer under its SIMPLE IRA plan will be accepted from a SIMPLE IRA; that is, an IRA used in conjunction with a SIMPLE IRA plan, prior to the expiration of the two (2) year period beginning on the date the individual first participated in that employer's SIMPLE IRA plan.

(5) Recharacterization. A regular contribution to a Traditional IRA may be recharacterized pursuant to the rules in Treasury Regulation Section 1.408A-5 as a regular contribution to this Deemed Roth IRA, subject to the limits in (3) above.

(6) Modified AGI. For purposes of (3) above, a Member's modified AGI for a taxable year is defined in Code Section 408A(c)(3)(C)(i) and does not include any amount included in adjusted gross income as a result of a rollover from a Traditional IRA (a "conversion").

(7) Compensation. For purposes of (1) above, "compensation" is defined as wages, salaries, professional fees, or other amounts derived from or received for personal services actually rendered (including, but not limited to commissions paid salesmen, compensation for services on the basis of a percentage of profits, commissions on insurance premiums, tips, and bonuses) and includes earned income, as defined in Code Section 401(c)(2) (reduced by the deduction the self-employed individual takes for contributions made to a self-employed retirement plan). For purposes of this definition, Code Section 401(c)(2) shall be applied as if the term trade or business for purposes of Code Section 1402 included service described in Code Subsection 1402(c)(6). Compensation does not include amounts derived from or received as earnings or profits from property (including but not limited to interest and dividends) or amounts not includible in gross income. Compensation also does not include any amount received as a pension or annuity or as deferred compensation. The term "compensation" shall include any amount includible in the individual's gross income under Code Section 71 with respect to a divorce or separation instrument described in subparagraph (A) of Code Section 71(b)(2). In the case of a married individual filing a joint return, the greater compensation of his or her Spouse is treated as his or her own compensation, but only to the extent that such Spouse's compensation is not being used for purposes of the Spouse making a contribution to a Roth IRA or a deductible contribution to a Traditional IRA.

(c) Collectibles. No part of the Deemed IRA Trust funds attributable to a Deemed Roth IRA shall be invested in collectibles within the meaning of Code Section 408(m), except as otherwise permitted by Code Section 408(m)(3), which provides an exception for certain gold, silver, and platinum coins issued under the laws of any state, and certain bullion.

(d) Life Insurance Contracts. No part of the Deemed IRA Trust funds attributable to a Deemed Roth IRA shall be invested in life insurance contracts.

(e) Distributions Before Death. No amount is required to be distributed prior to the death of the Member for whose benefit the Deemed Roth IRA account was originally established.

(f) Minimum Required Distributions.

(1) Notwithstanding any provision of this Deemed Roth IRA to the contrary, the distribution of the Member's interest in the account shall be made in accordance with the requirements of Code Section 408(a)(6), as modified by Code Section 408A(c)(5), and the regulations thereunder, the provisions of which are herein incorporated by reference.

(2) Upon the death of the Member, his or her entire interest will be distributed at least as rapidly as follows:

- (i) If the designated Beneficiary is someone other than the Member's surviving Spouse, the entire interest will be distributed, starting by the end of the calendar year following the calendar year of the Member's death, over the remaining life expectancy of the designated Beneficiary, with such life expectancy determined using the age of the Beneficiary as of his or her birthday in the year following the year of the Member's death, or, if elected, in accordance with paragraph (2)(iii) below.
- (ii) If the Member's sole designated Beneficiary is the Member's surviving Spouse, the entire interest will be distributed, starting by the end of the calendar year following the calendar year of the Member's death (or by the end of the calendar year in which the Member would have attained age seventy and one-half (70½), if later), over such Spouse's life, or, if elected, in accordance with paragraph (2)(iii) below. If the surviving Spouse dies before distributions are required to begin, the remaining interest will be distributed, starting by the end of the calendar year following the calendar year of the Spouse's death, over the Spouse's designated Beneficiary's remaining life expectancy determined using such Beneficiary's age as of his or her birthday in the year following the death of the Spouse, or, if elected, will be distributed in accordance with paragraph (2)(iii) below. If the surviving Spouse dies after distributions are required to begin, any remaining interest will be distributed over the Spouse's remaining life expectancy determined using the Spouse's age as of his or her birthday in the year of the Spouse's death.
- (iii) If there is no designated Beneficiary, or if applicable by operation of paragraph (2)(i) or (2)(ii) above, the entire interest will be distributed by the end of the calendar year containing the fifth anniversary of the Member's death (or of the Spouse's death in the case of the surviving Spouse's death before distributions are required to begin under paragraph (2)(ii) above).

- (iv) The amount to be distributed each year under paragraph (2)(i) or (ii) is the quotient obtained by dividing the value of the Deemed Roth IRA as of the end of the preceding year by the remaining life expectancy specified in such paragraph. Life expectancy is determined using the Single Life Table in Q&A-1 of Treasury Regulation Section 1.401(a)(9)-9. If distributions are being made to a surviving Spouse as the sole designated Beneficiary, such Spouse's remaining life expectancy for a year is the number in the Single Life Table corresponding to such Spouse's age in the year. In all other cases, remaining life expectancy for a year is the number in the Single Life Table corresponding to the Beneficiary's age in the year specified in paragraph (2)(i) or (ii) and reduced by one (1) for each subsequent year.

(g) Nonforfeitable. The interest of a Member in the balance in his or her Deemed Roth IRA account is nonforfeitable at all times.

(h) Reporting. The Deemed IRA Trustee, or its delegate, shall furnish annual calendar year reports concerning the status of the Deemed Roth IRA Account and such information concerning required minimum distributions as is prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(i) Construction. Notwithstanding any other sections which may be added or incorporated, the provisions of this Section 9.09 and this sentence will be controlling with respect to each Deemed Roth IRA created under the Plan. Any additional sections inconsistent with Code Section 408A, the Treasury Regulations, and other published guidance will be invalid.

(j) Rollovers into Deemed Roth IRA. Upon any distribution event pursuant to which a Participant or a Beneficiary who is a Participant's surviving Spouse would be permitted to have all or any portion of the Member's Account that qualifies as an Eligible Rollover Distribution rolled over into another Eligible Retirement Plan, such Member or Beneficiary who is a Member's surviving Spouse may elect to have the portion of such Eligible Rollover Distribution that is not attributable to contributions to the Deemed Roth IRA directly rolled over into a separately maintained Account within his or her Deemed Roth IRA. Any such amounts will be included in gross income as if the distribution had been made to such Member or Beneficiary who is a Member's surviving Spouse.

ROTH IRA FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Pension Fund will invest the funds in your Roth IRA account. Your Roth IRA will be credited with a base interest rate designated by Pension Fund and a good experience credit, if any, designated from time to time by Pension Fund's Board of Trustees.

The base interest rate is determined by Pension Fund quarterly. The base interest rate is credited at the end of each calendar quarter. Pension Fund has adopted policies which utilize indices based upon average short and intermediate term fixed income investment rates to guide decisions in establishing the base interest rate. By policy, the base interest rate may not be lower than 3.0% nor greater than 6.0%.

If a good experience credit is declared by the Board, the good experience credit is calculated on the average daily balance of the Roth IRA for the calendar year and credited on March 31 of the subsequent year.

The account values below provide a projection of your Roth IRA's value by stating the amount that would be available to you were you to withdraw your funds at the indicated times. The projections are based on the following assumptions:

- A $1,000 deposit is made annually on the first day of each year.
- Your age on January 1 of the contribution year is 40.
- The average base interest rate for each year is 3%.
- The base interest rate is compounded daily.
